

11/20/12

I just sent a pic of Deuce taken today with my phone, please let me know if u got it. He was played out. Biggest brit we ever had!

Ray

6/20/12

Roger and Deb,

Well our new pup (whom we have dubbed "Deuce"--because our best of all to date Brit was named "Ace" and we do so to honor him and place great expectation upon the once "Shorty") is doing just fine.

He weighed in at the Vet at 9.2 lbs.

He runs like the wind through my large back yard and is outraged that we will not allow him into the front yard. But it would be too hard to control him out front.

He LOVES balls!!!!!!!!!!!!

I keep forgetting to take my cell phone out with me to snap pics when I go out with him, and that is the only camera that I have.

But I will do my best to remember. You can receive pictures on your cell phone right?

He adjusted instantly to his "cubby"--an airline carry-on.

Still in the process of house breaking though.

I have never owned a pup this young before.

When can he be expected to be developed enough to learn commands (sit, stay, etc.)?

He is BRAVE and full of self confidence. He is fearless of our neighbors' Weimereiner (sic) and they became fast friends on day 1. Leo, the neighbor's dog absolutely towers over little Deuce, but Deuce just touches noses and wags his tail!

I'll keep in touch and thank you so much for breeding wonderful Brits.

Already, I see quality with a capital Q in this guy.

Ray